The Faculty of Economics is the University of Ljubljana's largest member, with more than 6,000 full-time and part-time undergraduate and graduate students. Founded in 1946, the Faculty is an important pillar of the Slovenian research and business community. It has developed a strong international network with institutions worldwide. The Faculty was awarded the EQUIS and the AACSB accreditation. Both accreditations rank the Faculty among the best business schools.

The City of Ljubljana, the capital of Slovenia, is a relatively large central European city situated between the Alps and the Adriatic Sea and has approximately 300,000 inhabitants. It is the political and cultural heart of the Slovenian nation, safe and particularly charming in summer. It is a city of culture and a rich historical legacy which offers all the friendliness of a small town and at the same time everything that a capital city is expected to offer.

The Republic of Slovenia lies at the heart of Europe where the Alps face the Pannonian plains and the Mediterranean meets the mysterious Karst. In 1991 Slovenia declared its independence and began its transition from socialism to a market economy. It boasts stable GDP growth and is viewed as a safe country, being ranked among those countries with the lowest degree of risk. Slovenia joined the European Union in 2004 and introduced the euro in 2007.
